

HP Sales Certified - Autonomy Data Protection Solutions [2014]

This certification validates that you have attained the level of knowledge required to sell HP Autonomy Data Protection solutions. It verifies that you:

- Know the market trends, business drivers, and customer challenges associated with the high-level data protection, and data backup and recovery
- Recognize the market demands and challenges specific to the backup and recovery of an enterprise data center, remote and branch office data, and mobile and personal data
- Can identify the customer demographic that would be targeted for an in-house (enterprise) data protection discussion or for a cloud or service based (SaaS) data protection discussion
- Can articulate how HP addresses these challenges through compelling value propositions that deliver business and IT value

Why earn this certification?

- To align to the standard structure and framework that support the HP selling process
- To play a critical role for customers who are rethinking data protection in the modern data center, helping them solve backup challenges in an era of big data
- To improve your understanding of customers and the big data landscape; qualifying and validating opportunities; and developing and proposing solutions in the data protection and data backup/recovery spaces
- To enhance your credibility when discussing high-level data protection or specific data backup and recovery market trends, business drivers, and challenges with your customers and prospects
- To develop compelling value propositions for data protection and data backup and recovery at scale, demonstrating that you know how to link solution capabilities to customer problems

Candidate

Typical candidates for this certification are sales representatives who engage with customers to discuss, qualify, validate, and develop opportunities in the data protection, and data backup and recovery spaces. These sales professionals position, promote, and propose in-house data protection and cloud/service-based (SaaS) HP Autonomy Data Protection solutions.
